LOWDEN'S ADDRESS ON CITIZENSHIP IS EULOGY OF AMERICA

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE DE-LIVERED GREAT TALK AT CAMP MEETING.

OVATION

Record Crowd Cheered Republican Candidate for Illinois' Governorship.

Col. Frank O. Lowden of Oregon, Republican candidate for the governorship, was the big attraction at the Franklin Grove Camp Meeting Tuesday, when he delivered an address on "Citizenship." Col. Lowden delivered! a semi-religious address, discussing the relationship of good citizenship and the church, and tactfully avoided any direct reference to politics. He was introduced by Dr. J. M. Phelps, district superintendent, and by Rev. Berry, pastor of the M. E. church in Oregon. Mr. Lowden said in part:

There would seem to be a peculiar propriety at this present time that the celebration of our national birthday be merged with a great religious meet ing. For the Declaration of Independence, as you will recall, invoked the Rev. Thomas Dornblaser Gives Up blessing of Almighty God upon what our fathers did. From then until now, in every success of our common coun try, whoever has been at the fore at the time has relied upon Divine Prov idence to help us through. You will recall that none of the Fathers was more dependent upon the skies for help than George Washington, and I want to remind you today that in his farewell address, the priceless legacy he left his country, he who had blessed it more, who had led us through war to peace, who had seen the foundation of our government under our constitution, still as the greatest legmorals and religion-and he addedals without religion.

So the great father of our country, in his last will and testament to the American people, as well as by the example of his life, has taught us how intimately religion is bound up with the welfare of our common coun try. And so I say to you today that no thoughtful man, I care not his creed, small part in reshaping the affairs Mrs. J. H. Roop, Aged 64, Met With I care not even if he be without creed -no thoughtful man can see how self-government can continue, how the centuries to come shall follow CHARLES SCHLAGEL DIED TODAY along the line of the last, without a deep and general religious faith. And Passed Away at Dixon Hospital at 10 when you look at the history of our own country, we have a conviction that we have been divinely led thru all these years.

The Declaration of Independence was not dreamed of when the battle of Bunker Hill was fought. No one then asked for independence. All the colony demanded was that their legal rights under English rule should be respected. They never thought of independence. They could not see the great country which was one day to come through their efforts. But Bunker Hill was fought and lost; we had reverses. If we had repelled the English troops at the beginning of that war we would still be a part of the British empire and our allegiance would be due to the king.

But Almighty God in His infinite wisdom-if it was not He, how do you explain it-ordained that the war should be prolonged, until in absolute defense of our rights, the cert Thursday evening at the Nachu-

QUITS PASTORATE:

Church to Take Army Position

Chicago Post: Rev. Thomas Dornblaser today gave up the pastorate of the Grace English Lutheran church to prepare for his services as chaplain in the army. He served the church for thirteen years. His resignation, coming as a surprise. was explained by the minister as the expression of a desire "to renew his lus to the church by the presence of a new face in the pulpit."

Mr. Dornblaser said:

"For thirteen years I have un iergone the routine of pastorate seracy he left us that immortal paper, vice. It is a gratifying reflection called the farewell address, and in that during this time bonds of that he said-whatever else may affection have been welded and I come, all that makes for political have shared in them. (Special to Telegraph)

Springfield, July 5-Gov. Dunne announced today that the Fifth and Sixth regiments of the Illinois National Guard will be ordered into the camp of instruction at Camp Dunee, Springfield, Sunday, July 16, for a stay of twelve days. The camp was de cided upon following a conference of Batteries A, B and C left for the battery at 2 o'clock this morning.

Dixon military men are not surprised at the decision of the governor to advance the date of the annual encampment, which had been set for August this year. It is thought that the next two weeks will demonstrate whether or not additional troops will be needed on the Mexican border, and if such forces are necessary the fact that the Fifth and Sixth are mobilized at that time will mean they will be called.

"BAT" MASTERSON IS ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Anti Saloon Leaders Say He Faked Muncie Graft Letters.

Muncie, Ind., July 5.-The Rev. Madison Swadener of Indianapolis, former associate superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, made a sworn statement denying charges that he had written letters to David (Bat) Masterson of Indianapolis, a figure in the graft and dynamiting cases against local officials

Masterson recently made a sworn statement that he and some of his ing. gun men had been hired by Wilbur Ryman, special prosecuting attorney, to appear before the Delaware county grand jury and falsely testify that Masterson had been employed by Mayor Rollin H. Bunch, Chief of Police W. A. McIlvaine and others to dynamite Ryman's house. At that time Masterson produced a bunch of letters, some purporting to have been written by the Rev Mr. Swadener on stationery by the Anti-Saloon league, in which Swadener urged Masterson to come to Ryman's demands. The Rev. Swadener's affidavit was accompanied by one from R. C. Minton, at torney for the Anti-Saloon league, denouncing the Masterson letters as

"Easy," says I. "Here Deneen and his push have been collecting nothing but reverses for a year and a half. They'll soon be able to string their defeats together and use them for a garland. They pinned five reverses on the Deneen crowd in fourteen months. Harry Olson was beaten for mayor; Deneen was ousted as ward committeeman; West was skinned for national committeeman; the Deneen crowd lost control of the state committee and the Cook County comittee. Well, they see it's going to be an uphill fight to get back again.

"They'll have to start building at the bottom again. Patronage is the thing. The county jobs are the nearest at hand and the likeliest to crop. It takes cush to put over a county slate, though.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely grease-less), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescue from imminent danger on a scenic rai road by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagrue kidmaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagrue for right-of-way. Helen, Storm and Rhinelander rescue Spike from Seagrue's men. Spike steals records to protect Rhinelander, and Storm and Helen save Spike from death in the burning court house. Vein in Superstition mine pinches out. Seagrue salts it and sells it to Rhinelander. The mine is relocated. Rhinelander gives Helen and George each one-third of the Superstition mine stock. Seagrue's scheme to prevent payment for the mine is spoiled.

HELEN'S RACE AGAINST TIME

They wandered some distance from the house. But unfortunately for their tete-a-tete the guests were arriving. Rhinelander, meeting these as well as he could, was compelled to dispatch Spike on a search for Helen.

Spike, who had lost none of his aptitude for situations, found her with Storm among the oaks, and in spite of Storm's disgusted expression he delivered his imperative message. And, conscience-stricken at having neglected her duties as hostess, Helen hurried l

Smoking a cigarette, he walked deliberately to where Storm stood gazing after his departing fiancee. wors, shouting vainly after the disappearing train. Seagrue stopped him.

'What's the matter?' Perkins was hardly able to speak: "I overlooked an order. Unless we stop the local, she will crash into Number Eight at the Junction."

Helen, who understood the emergency better than Seagrue, caught her companion's arm: "We must catch that train," she cried, "or there'll be a terrible accident."

"What do you mean-catch it?" demanded Seagrue. "I'm no sprinter." "In the machine-the machine," cried Helen. "Don't lose an instant. We may be too late.'

Seagrue, whose mind did not work as quickly, lost a precious moment in asking questions. Then agreeing to what she declared must be done, the two hurried to the house, boarded Seagrue's car and started rapidly down the highway after the local.

With a terrific burst of speed, the motor car pulled ahead of the fast moving engine and taking the track began to feel the full force of Helen's like a hurdle, crossed to the right side of the engine. For one moment the lives in the motor car hung narrowly in the balance; the hind wheels missed the pilot by only the fraction of a second. Helen tried to cry out her warning to the engineer. But he, mistaking her intent as the fireman had done, grew angry at what appeared to him a crazy joy ride. He refused to listen or look any longer toward the motorists, but waved them contemptuously off, calling them roundly for their idiocy and sitting down again to his throttle.

> Half mile beyond where Helen and Seagrue were now speeding, the railroad and the highway part company abruptly and all hope of making the engineer stop came to an end. As the train pulled away from the road, the motor car was halted and Seagrue and Helen got out. Little Helen Holmes, daughter of Genfrom imminent danger on a scenic rail-road by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagrue kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagrue for right-of-way. Helen, Storm and Rhinelander rescue Spike from Seagrue's men. Spike steals records to protect Rhinelander, and Storm and Helen save Spike from death in the burning court house. Vein in Superstition mine pinches out. Seagrue salts it and sells it to Rhinelander. The mine is relocated. Rhinelander gives Helen and George each one-third of the Superstition mine stock. Seagrue's scheme to prevent payment for the mine is spoiled.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

HELEN'S RACE AGAINST TIME They wandered some distance from the house. But unfortunately for their tete-a-tete the guests were arriving. Rhinelander, meeting these as well as he could, was compelled to dispatch

Spike on a search for Helen. Spike, who had lost none of his aptitude for situations, found her with Storm among the oaks, and in spite of Storm's disgusted expression he delivered his imperative message. And, conscience-stricken at having neglect-

Helen, in her excitement, started after Spike. Rhinelander and others followed. Storm and Seagrue were at it hammer and tongs. The men tore them apart. Storm, furious at his en-Seagrue and did not choose nice words in denouncing him and his conduct. Indeed, his anger was so uncontrollable, and to Helen's mind his lack of restraint before her guests so inexcusable, that she upbraided Storm severely for his intemperate language.

It was his opportunity to take advantage of Storm's natural but extreme indignation, and he made the most of the moment by professing to Helen to excuse Storm's fury, but blaming his bad temper for the disturbance. Storm, himself, cooled down by Spike, now tried to make his apologies to Helen.

But it was too late. Helen would not listen to him, and, turning away taking the engine. The fireman surwith her guests, left Storm with no- mised they were giving the train a body to sympathize with him but

Reaching the tennis courts, some of the guests took up the play, while others, looking back toward the scene of excitement, saw Helen coming over with Seagrue and Rhinelander. Reaching the courts, Helen, instead of stopping, passed on with Seagrue. Two men watched them walk away with particular interest. Spike, who seemed deeply concerned with the awkward situation, and George Storm, who now began to feel the full force of Helen's disapprobation. For an hour she moved among her guests, accompanied a good part of the time by Seagrue. To tell the truth, it was not wholly by her own desire. As her indignation cooled she began to consider that her lover had some grounds for his ungovernable outbreak and the exploits in which Seagrue had figured in the endeavor to do her and her friends all manner of harm recurred to her memory. She did feel, however, that Storm should have made ed her duties as hostess, Helen hurried a further effort to tell her, privately, he was sorry for having so rudely broken in on the festivities of the day ciently piqued to profess an interest in Seagrue she was far from feeling. The tennis games were finished and the guests making ready to go. Helen was about to start from the courts herself when Storm, coming up, spoke abruptly to her. But he was too proud and Helen was too disdainful. ors, shouting vainly after the disappearing train. Seagrue stopped him. 'What's the matter?'

Perkins was hardly able to speak: "I overlooked an order. Unless we stop the local, she will crash into Number Eight at the Junction."

Helen, who understood the emergency better than Seagrue, caught her companion's arm: "We must catch that train," she cried, "or there'll be a terrible accident."

"What do you mean-catch it?" demanded Seagrue. "I'm no sprinter." "In the machine-the machine," cried Helen. "Don't lose an instant. We may be too late."

Seagrue, whose mind did not work as quickly, lost a precious moment in asking questions. Then agreeing to what she declared must be done, the two hurried to the house, boarded Seagrue's car and started rapidly down the highway after the local.

After crossing the hill north of the village of Signal, the highway parallels the railroad for some distance. The local engineman, intent only on maintaining his schedule, was lumbering along at fairly good speed, when he saw the fireman on the other side of the cab leave his box and walk back into the gangway. A motor car occupied by a man and woman and driven rapidly along the road, was overrace-not an unusual thing along that particular tangent. But these racers waved frantically at him. Thinking they were jesting, the fireman waved back in turn. "We never can stop them!" cried Helen. "That man thinks we're fooling. You must run ahead of the train, and get over on the other side where we can reach the engineer." With a terrific burst of speed, the motor car pulled ahead of the fast moving engine and taking the track like a hurdle, crossed to the right side of the engine. For one moment the lives in the motor car hung narrowly in the balance; the hind wheels missed the pilot by only the fraction of a second. Helen tried to cry out her warning to the engineer. But he, mistaking her intent as the fireman had done, grew angry at what appeared to him a crazy joy ride. He refused to listen or look any longer toward the motorists, but waved them contemptuously off, calling them roundly for their idiocy and sitting down

"No," she replied, "I can do it and I'm going to. I know that train can be saved and I'm going to save it." "It's all right to try anything you'd have any chance of succeeding in, but you'd only be going to your death, I tell you," he persisted.

Unwilling to waste more time, Helen tried to open the car door to get out. Seagrue caught her arm: "You shan't go!" he declared.

"I will go," she cried. Before he could restrain her, she jumped out of the car and running swiftly to the edge of the bridge caught hold of it. The next moment the local dashed through below and Helen jumped to the top of the box car underfoot.
